LOVED AT LAST.

And so he loved me, though they said No lover of mine would come to me. That I should never be loved or wed.

And I, too, in the sad gray hours, When through low clouds the sunlight shone.

But now I know that what to me Seemed autumn rains were showers of spring.

How did it come? I ask of him. He says my face is sweeter and fair.

He loves me! Loves me! I repeat. The best assurance every hour.

I look through long showery hours. Made by his love all bright and fair.

It cannot be. Since I have known His love, only love could have done too.

O love, love, love! O blessed word, That never I understand.

THE TRAPPER'S STRATEGY. The rosy sun shone brightly up on the little river settlement.

The Indians had been troublesome of late, and the inhabitants of the little settlement.

Cautioning feeling his way, he advanced in the direction from which the sound proceeded.

Gov Hampton on the Situation.

The adjourned speech of Governor Hampton on the occasion of his reception by the Washington Light Infantry.

"Nat Berkley, I heard every word you said to that pesky varmint, Black Turtle, and ef I'd shoot ye like a dog, I'd save ye right."

"I'll see ye right, Housamover, I want to give ye a chance for yer life. Tell me the signal ye agreed on, an' I'll spare ye. I'll give yer three minutes to do it in so he quick."

"Nat, who had turned sickly pale when he heard that his plot was discovered, soon regained his wonted composure, however. He glared defiantly at Hank, who stood calmly, revolver in hand, awaiting a reply. It came in these words:—

"I'll see ye right, Housamover, I want to give ye a chance for yer life. Tell me the signal ye agreed on, an' I'll spare ye. I'll give yer three minutes to do it in so he quick."

Them Grasshoppers.

He looked into the waiting room at the Central Depot, saw an elderly lady come there to rest, and then, after making sure that the special policeman was not around, he entered the room.

"My good friends," he commenced, as he approached the lone old couple from Vermont, for heaven's sake help me a little."

"Where you?" asked the husband, struck with the stranger's homely appearance and nasal twinkle.

"None o' them," answered the grasshopper, replied the man, turning away his head, as if deeply affected.

"Be you one o' these poor unfortunate folks who want to get up by the grasshoppers?" exclaimed the woman, her sympathy all aroused.

"The same, madam," sighed Jones, had to leave the State—going to New Hampshire—so far as home and money goes out. Heaven only knows what will become of us."

"You are married?" she asked. "Yes," replied the man, who was in a wretched state of mind, and shaking with cold.

"I've heard about them grasshoppers. Was they very thick, I asked the man. "Thick as blackberries," you could not get them in front, and the tearing of their wings made a noise."

"My husband wasn't that afraid," said the woman. "I had a hundred acres of corn, fifty of wheat, thirty of oats, and some maple trees. I had the grasshoppers made a big business of it for hours, continued Jones."

"They ate the stalk right up, did they?" "Yes," replied the man, who had a sad look on his face. "They ate the stalk right up, did they?"

"Why the firm looked as if it had had a good deal of it. They had everything eaten up, I believe. I understand them kind of cases of farmers who would like to get in this way, I answered by the way."

What Toys Teach.

A child who gives away his toys and loses them is likely to find in after life. A child who holds a good grip of his money and breaks those of his neighbors is likely to be an enemy to his country.

"Dixie".

When, in 1857, Gay's "Dixie" Minstrel were at Mobile, Dan Emmet, one of the members of the company heard the negroes sing an air and chorus while rolling cotton on the levee.

"Dixie" was a success. In the spring of 1861, when the war broke out, Mrs. John Wood went to New Orleans to play an engagement at the Old Varieties Theatre.

Strange.

The strangest phase of the discussion on future tribulation has occurred at Chicago. Prof. Stein and Dr. Thomas a "liberal" Methodist, have been uttering sentimental sermons at all held in their pulpits, whereupon Dr. Ryder, pastor of St. Paul's Universalist church, came out in an open letter condemning these young converts but they go on in denying the existence of hell. Among other things this Universalist addresses them as follows:

"I hope neither of you will overlook the fact that the Bible does teach that there is a hell, the only question being as to the nature and duration of it. I trust, therefore, that the Universalist friends recently been into this hopeful view of the government of God will not attempt to outbid this gospel view, else the religious world may yet have the strange spectacle of the Universalist denoting the hell of the Bible against the denial of it by the orthodox party."
